

Konrad Hesses normative Kraft der Verfassung

Edited by Julian Krüper, Mehrdad Payandeh and Heiko Sauer

In his inaugural lecture of 1958, constitutional scholar Konrad Hesse enquired how constitutional normativity can be maintained across time and social change. The text has since become a staple of constitutional theory and is made available again in this volume with eight contributions that reflect on its lasting relevance.

Julian Krüper holds the Chair of Public Law, Constitutional Theory and Interdisciplinary Legal Research at the Faculty of Law at Ruhr University Bochum.

Mehrdad Payandeh holds the Chair of International Law, European Law and Public Law at Bucerius Law School in Hamburg.

Heiko Sauer holds a Chair for German and European Constitutional and Administrative Law at the Rheinische Friedrich-Wilhelms Universität Bonn.
