

Ciceronian Invectives

Emotions, Configurations, and Reactions

Edited by Philipp Geitner, Dennis Pausch, Christoph Schwameis, and Rainer Wierzcholowski

[Ciceronische Invektiven. Emotionen, Konfigurationen und Reaktionen.]

2023. Approx. 250 pages. EmAnt forthcoming in February

ISBN 978-3-16-161035-6
hardcover approx. 60,00 €

ISBN 978-3-16-162285-4
eBook PDF 0,00 €

Published in English.

Political communication in the late Roman Republic was highly coloured by rhetorical repertoires featuring disparagement, shaming, and other related phenomena. One of the most prolific perpetrators of such verbal conduct – known as invective – was the orator and statesman Marcus Tullius Cicero (106–43 BC). This volume, which gathers the contributions delivered during the conference »Ciceronian Invective. Emotions, Reactions, Performance«, held at Dresden's Technische Universität in 2020, takes a fresh look at the practices reflected in and relating to Cicero's tirades. By comprehending invective not only as a mere literary genre, but also as a practice embedded in social and political contexts, the aim is to arrive at a deeper understanding of Ciceronian invective. The emotions that such use of language aroused, its historical and rhetorical configurations, and the reactions of those offended by it or on its receiving end as an audience are all considered.

Survey of contents

Section I: Emotions

Christopher Degelmann: Ex ore impurissimo euomit: Disgust and vomiting in Cicero's invective repertoire – Judith Hack: Sexual insults in Cicero? – Ken Heuring: Emotional language in the Second Philippic

Section II: Configurations

Catherine Steel: Invective and provincial government: Cicero and his predecessors – Rainer Wierzcholowski: Cicero's rhetorical technique of apostrophe and attack: The case of Hortensius in the Verrines – Christoph Schwameis: Incidents of invective in the 'pirate chapter' of De suppliciis

Section III: Reactions

Henriette van der Blom: The alternative story: Contemporary invective responses to Cicero – Kathryn Tempest: Cicero under attack: Deception and emotions in the Trial of Plancius – Christoph Pieper: Catilina in senatu obmutuit? Ancient and medieval responses to Cicero's first Catilinarian speech Philipp Geitner 2020 PhD; Postdoc at the Collaborative Research Center 1285 »Invectivity. Constellations and Dynamics of Disparagement".

Dennis Pausch 2004 PhD; Professor of Latin at Technical University Dresden.

Christoph Schwameis 2018 PhD; teaches Roman literature and Latin grammar at the University of Vienna.

Rainer Wierzcholowski teaches Latin literature at the University of Wuppertal.

Order now:

https://www.mohrsiebeck.com/en/book/ciceronian-invectives-9783161610356?no_cache=1

order@mohrsiebeck.com

Phone: +49 (0)7071-923-17

Fax: +49 (0)7071-51104