Die neue Kölner Rechtswissenschaftliche Fakultät von 1919 bis 1950

[The New Cologne Faculty of Law from 1919 to 1950.]

Published in German.

In 1919 Konrad Adenauer succeeded in establishing a second university to sit alongside Bonn in Prussian Rhineland. In a short space of time and thanks to its founding members – F. Stier-Somlo, H. Lehmann, H. Planitz, G. J. Ebers, A. von Tuhr, A. Baumgarten, and G. Böhne – Cologne University's Faculty of Law developed into an eminent institution. However, when six of its members (G. J. Ebers, H. W. Goldschmidt, F. Haymann, H. Kelsen, L. Waldecker, and L. Wieruszowski) were forced to resign during the National Socialist regime, closure threatened. The faculty's fortunes were revived after 1945 by scholars such as H. C. Nipperdey (Labour Law), H. Jahrreiß (Constitutional and International Law), G. Kegel (International Private Law) and B. Rehfeld (History of Law), who renewed and expanded the range of disciplines. Federal Presidents Gustav Heinemann and Karl Carstens were among later faculty members.

Hans-Jürgen Becker Geboren 1939; Studium der Rechtswissenschaft an der Universität Frankfurt am Main; 1967 Promotion; 1969 Zweite Juristische Staatsprüfung; 1972 Habilitation (Frankfurt am Main); 1975 o.
