Die Verwaltung als Vertragspartner

Empirie und Dogmatik verwaltungsrechtlicher Vereinbarungen zwischen Behörde und Bürger

[Administrative Authority as a Party to a Contract. Empirical Knowledge and the Dogmatics of Agreements Pertaining to Administrative Law between Public Authorities and Citizens. By Volker Schlette.]

Published in German.

Even today, administrative law is still largely centred around unilaterally sovereign forms of action and in particular around the administrative act. Volker Schlette shows that this orientation does not meet the requirements of modern administrative law and that for this reason there should be an increasing use of consensually cooperative forms such as contracts pertaining to administrative law. These contracts have specific advantages, since they offer more alternatives regarding structure and content, are accepted more positively and enable solutions which are flexible, are adapted to single cases and are at the same time legally viable for a wide variety of problems.

Volker Schlette Geboren 1961; 1980–86 Studium der Rechtswissenschaften in Göttingen; 1989 Forschungsaufenthalt in Aix-en-Provence/Frankreich; 1990 Promotion; 1993 zweite jurist. Staatsprüfung; seit 1993 wiss. Assistent in Göttingen; 1999 Habilitation; seit 1999 Privatdozent für Öffentliches Recht und Rechtsvergleichung an der Universität Göttingen.
