Kierkegaard und der Deutsche Idealismus

Konstellationen des Übergangs

[Kierkegaard and the Philosophy of German Idealism. Constellations of Transition.]

Published in German.

Kierkegaard's existential philosophy began with a critique of Hegel. This critique describes Kierkegaard's own transition into modernity. To begin with, it converges with the path taken by Schelling in his later works, and at the same time it reinforces the late Fichte's approach to the practical self-realization of the individual. Kierkegaard radicalizes this approach and shows in great depth its fundamental religious and theological aspects. In this, the speculative figures of transition and suddenness are given a new Christological intelligibility, and at the same time those basic options which were the subject of controversy among the idealists become apparent.

»It is quite a task to untangle the web that somehow connects the Schelling, whose Naturphilosophie culminated in a break with his friend Fichte, to the Kierkegaard, whose remarkable dozen years of writing more or less begins in the period during which he is auditing Schelling's inaugural Berlin lectures. Such a task demands a fundamental rethinking of both the climate and the legacy of German idealism as such. I am happy to say that Lore Hühn's difficult but profound and surgically thorough and precise work [...] is impressively up to the task. [...] Dr. Hühn [...] one of the most thoughtful and illuminating readers of Schelling currently working in the Germanspeaking philosophical world« (S. 135).
