Christian life is life in the communio sanctorum: life in the church and at the same time in society, whose organization and development is also shaped by the church. The church keeps the Gospel, its answer to the question about the meaning of life along with the question itself, accessible to society throughout the generations. It advocates equal rights for all those religious and ideological groups accepting pluralism, accepts social responsibility together with them, resists the economy-oriented restrictive view of social identity and promotes the spirit of tolerance. In doing so, it makes a constructive contribution to the globalization process.
