Politischer Existentialismus

Subjektivität zwischen Entfremdung und Engagement

[Political Existentialism. Subjectivity between Alienation and Engagement. By Michael Großheim.]

Published in German.

The attitude of amoral self-commitment, which in the current discussion is attributed solely to Islam, must be put into a larger context. In the form of political existentialism, this recent cause of disconcertment and helplessness is part of our own culture, a part which can look back on a two hundred-year tradition. Michael Großheim describes the philosophical roots of this »eerie, sinister, frightening world of absolute unselfishness« (Hannah Arendt) by analyzing texts and ideas of Friedrich Schlegel's concept of »self-destruction,« Hegel's thoughts on the »abstraction from onself« and Gudrun Ensslin's »holy self-fulfillment.«

Michael Großheim Geboren 1962; 1993 Promotion; 2000 Habilitation; derzeit Vertreter einer Professur für Philosophie an der Universität Rostock.
