

The History of the Jacob Cycle (Genesis 25–35)

Recent Research on the Compilation, the Redaction and the Reception of the Biblical Narrative and Its Historical and Cultural Contexts Edited by Benedikt Hensel

[Die Geschichte des Jakob-Zyklus. Neue Forschungen über die Zusammenstellung, Bearbeitung und Rezeption der biblischen Erzählung und ihrer historischen und kulturellen Kontexte.]

Published in English.

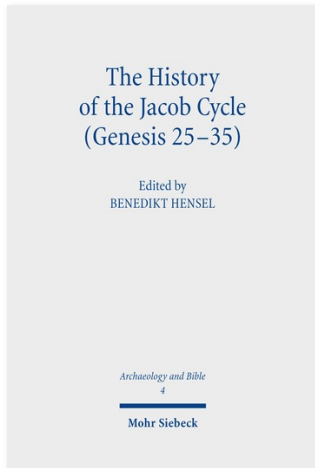

Untangling the growth of the Jacob Cycle and the historical realities behind it is of enduring interest, as the studies on the Jacob Cycle in recent years indicate. It seems to be one of the oldest origin traditions preserved in the Hebrew Bible. In spite of the previous consensus in the field, new studies and current archaeological findings have scrutinized several of the previous »certainties«, leading to a debate on whether some of the basic assumptions should be modified or even rejected. This volume comprises seven articles from renowned international specialists in the field that offer comprehensive insights into new approaches and current research questions. The unique perspective lays in its combining of literary, archaeological, and historical approaches in order to understand and to evaluate the historical realities behind the Jacob Cycle and its traditions.

Survey of contents

Benedikt Hensel: The History of the Jacob Cycle in Recent Research: An Introduction to the Volume – Konrad Schmid: Shifting Political Theologies in the Literary Development of the Jacob Cycle – Friederike Neumann: Jacob, Laban, and the Two Daughters: Insights into the Formation of the Jacob-Laban-Story (Genesis 29–31) – Benedikt Hensel: Edom in the Jacob Cycle (Gen *25–35): New Insights on Its Positive Relations with Israel, the Literary-Historical Development of Its Role, and Its Historical Background(s) – Jakob Wöhrle: Jacob from Israel and Jacob from Judah: Reflections upon the Formation and the Historical Backgrounds of the Jacob Story – Christian Frevel: Jacob as Father of the Twelve Tribes: Literary and Historical Considerations – Guy Darshan: The Priestly Account of the End of Jacob's Life: The Significance of Text-Critical Evidence – Aharon Tavger: »And He Called the Name of that Place Bethel« (Gen 28:19): Historical-Geography and Archaeology of the Sanctuary of Bethel

Benedikt Hensel Born 1979; 2011 PhD; 2016 Habilitation; 2019–21 positions as Interim Professor of Hebrew Bible and Biblical Archaeology at the universities of Mainz (Germany) and Zurich (Switzerland); currently Full-Professor of Hebrew Bible at the Carl von Ossietzky Universität Oldenburg (Germany).

<https://orcid.org/0000-0001-6608-2676>

2021. VIII, 236 pages. ArchB 4

ISBN 978-3-16-160093-7

DOI 10.1628/978-3-16-160093-7

eBook PDF 89,00 €

ISBN 978-3-16-159927-9

sewn paper 89,00 €

Order now:

https://www.mohrsiebeck.com/en/book/the-history-of-the-jacob-cycle-genesis-25-35-9783161600937?no_cache=1

order@mohrsiebeck.com

Phone: +49 (0)7071-923-17

Fax: +49 (0)7071-51104