

Mitteleuropäisches Zivilrecht. Studien und Beiträge zum ADHGB

Edited by Martin Löhnig and Stephan Wagner

The series Mitteleuropäisches Zivilrecht – Studien und Beiträge zum ADHGB (MZR) is a platform for studies on the legal field surrounding the General German Civil Code. This covers Germany as well as all successor states of the Austrian-Hungarian dual monarchy in (East-)Central Europe. Content-wise, the legal area is not limited to commercial and company law, but goes deep into general civil law, whose development right into the second half of the twentieth century was greatly influenced by the ADHGB. The series welcomes monographs, post-doctoral theses, outstanding dissertations and thematically-coherent collections alike.

The creation of a European legal and economic community is a task that has not just arisen today. The nineteenth century saw successful consolidation projects such as 1861's General German Commercial Code that determined trade in central Europe and took on the function of a common law of obligations.
