

Self, Self-Fashioning and Individuality in Late Antiquity

Edited by MAREN R. NIEHOFF and JOSHUA LEVINSON

Culture, Religion, and Politics in the Greco-Roman World

4

Mohr Siebeck

Culture, Religion, and Politics in the Greco-Roman World

Editors

Kendra Eshleman (Boston College), Teresa Morgan (University of Oxford), Laura Nasrallah (Yale University), Maren R. Niehoff (The Hebrew University of Jerusalem), and Peter Van Nuffelen (Ghent University)

Advisory Board

Milette Gaifman (Yale University), Martha Himmelfarb (Princeton University), Hayim Lapin (University of Maryland), Duncan MacRae
(University of California, Berkeley), Jörg Rüpke (Universität Erfurt), Lieve Van Hoof (Ghent University)

4

Self, Self-Fashioning, and Individuality in Late Antiquity

New Perspectives

Edited by

Maren R. Niehoff and Joshua Levinson

Mohr Siebeck

ISBN 978-3-16-158990-4 / eISBN 978-3-16-158991-1
DOI 10.1628/978-3-16-158991-1

ISSN 2510-0785 / eISSN 2568-6623
(Culture, Religion, and Politics in the Greco-Roman World)

The Deutsche Nationalbibliothek lists this publication in the Deutsche Nationalbibliographie; detailed bibliographic data are available at <http://dnb.dnb.de>.

© 2019 Mohr Siebeck Tübingen, Germany. www.mohrsiebeck.com

This book may not be reproduced, in whole or in part, in any form (beyond that permitted by copyright law) without the publisher's written permission. This applies particularly to reproductions, translations and storage and processing in electronic systems.

The book was typeset by epline in Böblingen using Minion typeface, printed on non-aging paper by Gulde-Druck in Tübingen, and bound by Buchbinderei Spinner in Ottersweier.

Printed in Germany.

Acknowledgements

It is a great pleasure to acknowledge the institutions and people without whom this volume would never have emerged. The essays collected here are the fruits of an international research group on “Contours of the Self in Ancient Mediterranean Cultures,” which worked during the academic year of 2017–18 at the Israel Institute for Advanced Studies in Jerusalem. The essays are largely based on the international conference concluding the year and the Yohanan Levy Lecture Series during the summer semester of 2018, both of which were superbly coordinated by Avigail Manekin-Bamberger. Two members of the group, Alfons Fürst and Gretchen Reydam-Schils, generously made available additional funds to support the conference, and thus enabled us to involve more scholars in our discussions than we had originally anticipated. We thus thank the project “The History of Human Freedom and Dignity in Western Civilization,” which operates in the framework of the European Union’s Horizon 2020 program, and the Notre Dame Workshop on Ancient Philosophy. Moreover, we express our heartfelt thanks to the administrative team of the IAS and the heads of the Institute, who provided ideal conditions for our cooperative endeavors. Both the outgoing director, Michal Lineal, and the incoming director, Yitzhak Hen, welcomed and supported our group well beyond the call of their duty, including support for the proceedings of the conference. This collection of essays can only be a small token of our gratitude.

We also thank the Ministry of Science and Culture in Lower Saxony, Germany, which generously supported the copyediting of this volume, in connection with a joint research project with Reinhard Feldmeier on “Journeys in the Roman East.” The copyediting of the volume was an exceptional pleasure: Sara Tropper worked with astonishing speed, returning the papers “even before the dust could settle,” as one of the contributors remarked, and significantly improved the style of the essays. The handsome and coherent appearance of this volume is to her credit. Her collaborator, Marc Sherman, checked all the bibliographical references with utmost precision and prepared the index. We would also like to thank the anonymous reviewers of the different articles, who provided detailed and thoughtful reports, thus considerably improving the overall quality of the book. Thanks also to the excellent editorial team of Mohr Siebeck, especially to Jana Trispel, Tobias Stähler and Susanne Mang, who did much beyond their duty to produce this volume.

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	V
------------------------	---

MAREN R. NIEHOFF Fashioning this Volume	1
--	---

Constructing the Self

DAVID LAMBERT “Desire” Enacted in the Wilderness: Problems in the History of the Self and Bible Translation	25
---	----

MATTHEW ROLLER Selfhood, Exemplarity, and Cicero’s Four Personae: On Constructing Your Self after Your Model and Your Model after Your Self	51
---	----

MARGARET GRAVER Interiority and Freedom in Seneca’s De Beneficiis : Acts of Kindness and the Perfected Will	71
--	----

GRETCHEN REYDAMS-SCHILS How to Become Like God and Remain Oneself	89
--	----

KAREN L. KING Becoming Fully Human: Contours and Expressions of the Self according to the Gospel of Mary	105
---	-----

YAIR FURSTENBERG Rabbinic Responses to Greco-Roman Ethics of Self-Formation in Tractate Avot	125
---	-----

CHARLES M. STANG The Doubled Self and the Worship of the Gods	149
--	-----

JOSHUA LEVINSON The Divided Subject: Representing Modes of Consciousness in Rabbinic Midrash	169
LAURA NASRALLAH The Worshipping Self, the Self in Light	187
EDWARD WATTS The Senses, the Self, and the Christian Roman Imperial Subject: Hagia Sophia as a Space of Directed Interiority	213

Self-Fashioning

CATHARINE EDWARDS The Epistolographic Self: The Role of the Individual in Seneca's Letters . . .	227
EVE-MARIE BECKER Paul's Epistolary Self in and around Philippians	253
ILARIA L. E. RAMELLI Autobiographical Self-Fashioning in Origen	273
MAREN R. NIEHOFF A Hybrid Self: Rabbi Abbahu in Legal Debates in Caesarea	293
IRMGARD MÄNNLEIN-ROBERT Move Your Self: Mobility and Migration of Greek Intellectuals to Rome . . .	331
REUVEN KIPERWASSER Narrating the Self: Tales of Rabbi Zeira's Arrival to the Land of Israel	353

Self and Individual in Society

CLIFFORD ANDO Self, Society, Individual, and Person in Roman Law	375
JÖRG RÜPKE Urban Selves: Individualization in Roman Cities	393

SARIT KATTAN GRIBETZ Constructions of the Self through Time: Gender, Text, Embodiment, Experience	419
MIRA BALBERG The Subject Supposed to Forget: Rabbinic Formations of the Legal Self . . .	445
ISHAY ROSEN-ZVI Two Midrashic Selves: Between Origen and the Mekhilta	471
ALFONS FÜRST Individuality and Self-Agency: The Self in Origen's Metaphysics of Freedom	505
TOBIAS NICKLAS Constructing Individual Selves within Social Hierarchies: The Letters of Copres and Synesios	523
List of Contributors	537
Index of Names	543
General Index	549

Fashioning this Volume

MAREN R. NIEHOFF¹

The roots of the Western (Christian) Self, with its emphasis on uniqueness and interiority, have fascinated scholars for several generations. Augustine usually plays a key role in narratives sketching a linear development from antiquity to modernity, and points to a clear progression from social forms of living with an outward orientation to the emergence of a robust Self turned inward.² Given the prevalence of such a focus in modern scholarship, it may come as a surprise that the present volume contains no article on Augustine. This volume gathers the fruits of a conference and a lecture series in memory of Yohanan Levy, which took place in the summer of 2018 at the Israel Institute for Advanced Studies in Jerusalem. Experts in different disciplines convened to discuss constructions of the Self, forms of self-fashioning, and conceptions of individuality in Late Antiquity. No teleology is constructed here, no climax envisioned towards which authors gravitate (or from which they deviate). Indeed, no claim is made about Late Antiquity as a time when the real individual Self was discovered, and the ground prepared for Medieval and Modern European notions.³

We instead offer horizontal perspectives on constructions of the Self and illuminate them by comparison to processes of self-fashioning and forms of individuality, highlighting the fluid boundaries between these notions. Committed to a rigorous interdisciplinary approach, we study philosophical, literary, historical, and material evidence, arguing that these different aspects should not be set apart, but rather appreciated as complementing each other. The Self, we suggest, is rarely completely isolated and exclusively turned inward, but usually shows some awareness of its environment and social embeddedness. Vice versa, self-fashioning and constructions of individuality often imply a dimension of introspection and self-awareness. The enormously complex relationship between interiority and exteriority is investigated here in a great variety of sources from different cultural and religious backgrounds. Rather than focusing on one specific tradition, we give equal attention to “Pagans,” Jews, and Christians as participants in broader cultural discourses.⁴

¹ Thanks to Teresa Morgan for her extremely helpful comments on a draft of this chapter.

² See esp. MISCH 1907; BROWN 1967; TAYLOR 1989; STROUMSA 1990; KOCH 2008; MARION 2012. FUHRER 2008 offers a fresh literary analysis of the Confessions, taking Augustine's political concerns into account.

³ See also KUGEL 2017: 259, who humorously comments on the discovery of the Self in ever new periods, depending on the respective scholar's field of specialization. He concludes: "On balance, it seems unwise to approach this matter in terms of the individual; a closer look reveals that such an absolute creature does not exist even today, as for its 'emergence,' it seems to come and go even within a single society in a single period."

We recognize multiple discourses illuminating notions of interiority and exteriority, bearing in mind the dependence of each construction on a specific society, religion, or philosophical school. We ask not only how philosophers reflected upon themselves and defined the kernel of the human personality, but also how figures from jurists and rabbis to architects and emperors endeavored to direct the construction of interiority, self-fashioning and individuality by creating spaces for the experience of individuality and self-reflection, which could then be inhabited by those under their influence. In other words, we approach our subject both from below, namely, from the perspective of the experiencing individual, and from above, namely, from the point of view of authorities in a position to influence the self-perception of others. On both levels, we appreciate the impact of the constructor and avoid essentializing any specific construct. We also investigate the reciprocal relations between the two realms, pointing to ways in which society shaped the Self and the individual, and vice versa, how individual self-definitions affected society.

Our approach is emphatically interdisciplinary and moves away from an exclusive focus on select philosophical treatises, which have been given special attention in the study of the Self. We aim for a more integrative perspective that includes letters, legal texts, Bible commentaries, historical treatises, and material culture, which are usually the domain of literary scholars, experts of exegesis, and historians. We also cross linguistic boundaries and examine sources in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and Aramaic. Rabbinic literature, which is usually left out of studies of Late Antiquity, is an important part of our project and illuminates the diverse ways in which Jews saw themselves and contributed to wider discourses.⁵ Christian authors, both orthodox and heterodox, are integrated as parts of the overall picture, interacting with others, not as magnets towards which the general discussion moves. Many “Pagans” populate this volume as vigorous discussion partners, not as losers in a historical battle.

⁴ I use “Pagan” in inverted commas to signal that this term reflects an external perspective, as stressed by FÉDOU 1988: 31–7; BELAYCHE 2018.

⁵ While rabbinic literature is the largest literary corpus of the Eastern Roman Empire, it has been virtually ignored in standard works, such as Late Antiquity: A Guide to the Postclassical World (BOWERSOCK et al. 1999) and the Oxford Handbook of Late Antiquity (JOHNSON 2012). However, the new Oxford Dictionary of Late Antiquity (NICHOLSON 2018), which engaged Philip S. Alexander as an area advisor, features a welcome number of entries on Judaism and rabbinic sources. Two leading journals in the field, namely Antiquité Tardive and Journal of Late Antiquity, feature only a handful of articles on the topic (HEZSER 2006; R. COHEN 2016; APPLEBAUM 2011; BALBERG 2015; WATTS BELSER 2015). GOODMAN and ALEXANDER 2011 drew attention to this state of scholarship and called for a bridging of the gaps. They offered a collection of introductory essays, which was accompanied by a collection of introductions to each of the major rabbinic corpora (BEN-ELIYAHU, COHN, and MILLAR 2012).

This volume engages thriving discussions of the Self in Antiquity, which were largely initiated by a group of French scholars. Michel Foucault (1976, 1988) outlined the contours of the field by describing technologies of the Self in a variety of texts, paying special attention to Seneca’s Letters. Foucault underlined the social embeddedness of discourses on the Self and pointed to implied structures of power, pre-Christian forms of sexuality, and non-confessional paradigms of self-examination. Vernant (1989) influentially distinguished between the individual within groups (“I individu stricto sensu”), the subject (“le sujet”), and the introvert Self (“le moi”). These different categories are associated with specific literary genres: the individual with biography, the subject with “I” speech, and the introvert Self with strictly private, autobiographical writings. Based on this rigorous distinction, Vernant concluded that Classical Greece did not know the introvert Self and encouraged a clear separation of disciplines with emphasis on Augustine as a turning point. This distinction has remained influential until today, as can be seen in the recent collection of articles Le moi et L’intériorité (Aubry and Ildefonse 2013), which accepts Vernant’s definitions, but identifies traces of interiority in a wider spectrum of literary genres than autobiography.

Following these beginnings, scholars of ancient philosophy have dominated the study of the Self. Christopher Gill (1996, 2006, 2009) offered seminal studies in which he analyzed philosophical discourses in view of literature and tragedy. Gill points to our modern predisposition for Cartesian categories and warns us not to look for inner and distinctly subjective notions of the Self in Antiquity. Proper readings of the ancient texts require a different approach and a greater sensitivity to the social embeddedness of personality. The ancient Self, Gill argues, is best defined as an “objective participant,” which implies that individuals largely play the roles offered by their society. They remain oriented towards objective norms rather than developing an autonomous, inner personality. Gill’s call for caution is well heeded in this volume, and ancient constructions of the Self are investigated with attention to their social context. At the same time, however, we move beyond the notion of an “objective participant” and investigate diverse combinations of interiority and exteriority. Furthermore, we extend the field of investigation by comparing “Pagan,” Christian, and Jewish sources and by arguing that political authorities often constructed patterns of shaping the Self.

Several scholars have pointed to the central contribution of Stoicism to ancient discourses on the Self. Gretchen Reydams-Schils (2005) analyzed the Roman Stoics, especially Musonius Rufus, and pointed to their assumption of an irreducibly personal self, which departs from Platonic notions because it is embedded in the specific circumstances of each person. Social involvement does not need to be transcended in this school, but rather provides a space for self-fulfillment and ethical action. Furthermore, Sorabji's encompassing study, Self: Ancient and Modern Insights about Individuality, Life, and Death (2006) offers incisive studies of the human Self, personal identity, and self-awareness, ranging not only from Antiquity to modernity, but also from West to East. Sorabji emphatically argues for the rich variety of views in the ancient world and stresses that the Stoics developed a distinctly personal sense of the Self. Unlike Plato, who posits an ideal and universal, rational Self, which transcends specific character traits, the Stoics paid serious attention to the circumstances of one's life and individual traits. Sorabji draws attention to the literary genre of the biography, which became prevalent in Hellenistic times and encapsulates the growing interest in distinct personalities. Moreover, Sorabji's monograph Emotion and Peace of Mind (2000) analyzes inner-Stoic debates following Chrysippus' influential definition of the emotions as evaluative judgments, which require conscious assent. Seneca is shown to struggle with the problem of physical responses, such as shivering, which seemingly defy rational control and are thus not within the realm of assent.⁶ Following Reydams-Schils and Sorabji, this volume pays special attention to Stoicism, while at the same time engaging Platonism. Several articles raise the question whether Stoic positions ultimately converge with Platonic ones, as both formulate normative and thus objective demands on the individual. Charles Stang specifically discusses Neo-Platonic authors as significant participants in discourses about the Self, and Karen King argues that Platonic ideas contributed to the construction of the Self in the Gospel of Mary.

Graver (2002, 2007) highlighted the centrality of the emotions for Stoic philosophers and their concern to examine, correct, and purify them. In Graver's reading, the Stoics promote a high degree of introspection to monitor the upsurge of emotions, which are understood as complex judgments about what we regard as valuable in our surroundings. The Stoics did not simply advocate an eradication of the emotions but aimed at a therapy, which elevates them to a higher, rational level and thus helps human beings to live the kind of life they are destined for as humans. In this volume, Graver further develops her approach by examining Seneca's notion of beneficence, which allows for a concrete relationship with the social environment and defines Self in terms of the Other.

Following Foucault, Shadi Bartsch (2006) studied Seneca in the context of Roman culture with special emphasis on literary analysis, feminist perspectives, ⁶ See also the collection of articles edited by MARIE-ODILE GOULET-CAZÉ (2011), which investigates the notion of assent and human impulse in a series of Stoic philosophers. Of special interest to our volume is the essay by Wilfried Kühn, who highlights that the Stoics introduced the notion of self-attachment as a condition of self-preservation. Furthermore, LAURAND (2014) offers a detailed analysis of Musonius Rufus, engaging with the scholarship on the Self. He argues that Musonius interprets marriage as a space which allows human beings to combine the care of the Self with the care for the Other. WILDBERGER (2006) addresses issues of individuality in the context of Seneca's broader notion of the world guided by providence.

and political background. Sexuality plays a key role in her work. Seneca's philosophy emerges under her pen as a form of inscribing oneself into society and using its structures as metaphors of the Self, rather than withdrawing from politics, as has often been assumed. Bartsch and Wray (2009) edited a volume on Seneca and the Self, which calls for a fresh appreciation of his contribution to ancient discourses and bridges the disciplinary gap between philosophy and tragedy. The third section of that volume, with articles on "Seneca and Roman Culture" by Elizabeth Asmis, Catharine Edwards, James Ker, and Shadi Bartsch, is especially relevant for our project, as it provides a paradigm for studying the connection between philosophical, literary, and political dimensions of the Self. In our volume, this paradigm is extended to a much broader variety of sources, religions, and cultural contexts, including material evidence as well.

The domain of Self-fashioning is usually occupied by literary scholars, beginning with Stephen Greenblatt, who coined the term in the context of Renaissance studies (Greenblatt 1980). Greenblatt promoted the New Historicist approach, which interprets literary works as part of broader cultural and political structures. On this view, the literary and aesthetic dimension cannot be isolated from the historical but must be appreciated as an integral part of it. Greenblatt's notion of self-fashioning has been fruitfully applied in Classical studies by Tim Whitmarsh, who eloquently analyzed authors of the Second Sophistic in situations of cultural hybridity within the Roman Empire (Whitmarsh 2001). Their fragmented Selves and ironical self-positioning within Greco-Roman society reflected and shaped their historical experience. In Whitmarsh's interpretation, the very act of writing constitutes the Self, which remains open to new reconfigurations on other occasions of written self-expression. More recently, two experts of Latin literature, Alexander Ahrweiler and Melanie Möller, edited a German-English collection of articles entitled Notions of the Self in Antiquity and Beyond (Arweiler and Möller 2008). This volume bridges the gap between philosophical and literary discourses as well as between Latin and Greek sources. The contributors offer close readings of a great variety of texts and address questions of self-reflection, individuality, and personal identity. Special attention is paid to connections between ancient and modern notions, without, however, positing a linear development based on theological continuity. Following these literary studies of Self-fashioning in Antiquity, our volume extends the field of investigation to include "Pagan," Jewish, and Christian texts as well as material evidence. The essays on Self-fashioning pay special attention to techniques of writing and the epistolary genre – a prime vehicle for constructions of personal selves. The fluidity of boundaries is underlined by the fact that Catharine Edwards discusses Seneca's self-fashioning in the context of Stoic philosophy and Matthew Roller in the first section concludes his essay on Cicero with remarks on Greenblatt's notion of Self-fashioning. The essays collected here move beyond previous studies by arguing that authors in positions of authority not only responded to structures of power in their society but also creatively shaped them for their implied audiences and communities.

Notions of individuality have predominantly been studied by historians. Recently, Clifford Ando and Jörg Rüpke have highlighted the agency and performance of individuals in the multifaceted world of the Roman Empire, Ando with emphasis on the relations between center and periphery, Rüpke with special attention to religious rites.⁷ The two scholars have moreover collaborated to illuminate boundaries between public and private spheres in ancient religion and law (Rüpke and Ando 2015).⁸ A landmark on the way to our volume is the collection of articles The Individual in the Religions of the Ancient Mediterranean (Rüpke 2013). This volume aims at getting beyond the traditional model of polis-religion and uncovers forms of private religiosity in a wealth of different sources, especially in material evidence and inscriptions. “Pagan,” Christian, and even two Jewish sources from the Hellenistic and rabbinic realm are included. Forms of individuation have thus been exposed in ancient religions, which are independent of modern modes of conceptualization. Following the historical and interdisciplinary approach proposed by Rüpke, we focus in this volume on mechanisms of constructing individuality in “Pagan,” Jewish, and Christian texts, but also pay attention to implied contours of self-reflection and introversion. Some of the contributions show close connections between the Self and the individual, while others underline their difference.

While Christian authors have generally been recognized as participating in discourses about the Self and even significantly shaping them, Judaism has prompted polarized discussions. Some scholars saw Jews as active participants in wider discourses, while others highlighted their isolation.⁹ Notions of the Self and individuality have proven significant test cases, as they engage archetypal assumptions about the Jews as a tight ethnic group versus Greco-Roman individualists. In these controversies Philo of Alexandria has first come into focus, as he wrote in Greek and obviously engaged Hellenic traditions. Emile Bréhier (1950) pointed to Philo’s adoption of Stoic notions of self-preservation and self-awareness. Maren R. Niehoff (2012) showed his innovative use of biographies, which narrate individual lives of distinct personalities. Moreover, Niehoff (2018) provided the first intellectual biography of Philo and argued for his increasing orientation towards Stoic philosophy, which was prevalent in Rome, where he spent several years as the head of a Jewish embassy to Gaius Caligula. In Niehoff's handling, Philo emerges as an author who became aware of playful ways of self-fashioning through writing and moved from Platonic, strongly transcendental models of selfhood to Stoic ideas about the individual as embedded in society.

⁷ ANDO 2000, 2003, 2008; RÜPKE 2006, 2010, 2011, 2016.

⁸ ANDO and RÜPKE complement the insights of JOHN SCHEID 2013 (translated into English by Ando), who has studied notions of individuality in Roman religion, stressing its social dimension and warning us not to inject Christian, especially German-Protestant, notions into the discussion of ancient texts.

⁹ Compare the divergent views of STEMBERGER 1987; ALEXANDER 1990, 1992 a and b, 1998, 2011, 2016; LAPPIN 2000, 2012; DOHRMANN and STERN 2008; DOHRMANN and YOSHIKO REED 2013, who argued for mechanisms of integration, while STERN 1994, 2003; SCHREMER 2010; ROSEN-ZVI 2011, 2017, argue for Jewish isolation.

Other areas of ancient Judaism have been drawn into the discussion of the Self. Carol Newsom (2012) ushered in new research into the construction of the moral Self in Biblical and post-biblical literature. Heeding her call, David Lambert (2016) and Françoise Mirguet (2017) studied constructions of the Self in Bible interpretation, showing that especially Hellenistic Jews of the Second Temple Period interpreted key-terms of the Bible as a code for interiority and inner emotions. Rabbinic literature has also been investigated with a view to the question whether notions of the Self-care can be identified. Steven Fraade (1986) and David Biale (1992) ushered in the discussion with studies of ascetic practices among the rabbis. Michael Satlow (2003) and Jonathan Schofer (2003, 2005) followed with detailed analyses of rabbinic texts, which suggest that Torah study was conceived as a kind of Self-care in Greco-Roman terms. Dina Stein (2012) and Joshua Levinson (2012) explored literary strategies of self-reflection in rabbinic literature, while Mira Balberg (2014) argued that the rabbis remapped the world of purity by introducing the Self as a conscious agent capable of self-reflection and self-awareness. Most recently, Ayelet Hoffmann Libson (2018) has shown that legal discussions in both Palaestina and Babylonia increasingly incorporate personal and subjective information, demanding of their clients to examine themselves and reflect upon themselves. By contrast, Adi Ophir and Ishay Rosen-Zvi (2018) confirmed the rabbis' staunch opposition to their environment and suggested that they remained oblivious to notions of the Self. This scholarly dispute finds expression in the present volume, too. While most contributors discussing rabbinic sources point to structures of Self, Self-fashioning, and individuality, Rosen-Zvi highlights the rabbi's unique sense of complete absorption in the Biblical text, which leaves no space for self-reflection.

Outline of this Volume

This volume is divided into three sections, each containing essays on "Pagan," Jewish, and Christian materials which are arranged in chronological order. The volume moves from "Constructing the Self" to "Self-fashioning" and "Self and Individual in Society," that is, from notions traditionally defined in philosophical terms to more literary and social domains. True to our interdisciplinary approach, we seek to underline the fluidity of boundaries between these categories and discuss aspects of social embeddedness, literary strategies, and material evidence in the first section, while connecting forms of Self-fashioning to both philosophical and social issues. Individuality, too, is investigated with a view to the other two categories, namely, the introvert Self and literary strategies of Self-fashioning.

The section “Constructing the Self” opens with an essay by David Lambert, who reflects on modern inquiries into ancient forms of interiority. Alerting us to the dangers of projecting our own assumptions onto Antiquity, he argues that the Bible and its interpreters are a prime site for examining such retroactive imposition of interiority. Lambert investigates the test-case of the Hebrew expression ta'avah, which the Greek and Latin translators and interpreters of the Bible regularly rendered as “desire.” Philo even embarks on a detailed explanation of inward desire and directs his readers how to control it. Lambert, by contrast, stresses that the original Hebrew use of ta'avah was far more bodily and socially embedded. In fact, its meaning is close to “demand” and presupposes interaction, akin to some cognitive models. Lambert’s essay raises the question whether and to what extent interiority can be identified as a self-contained, isolated phenomenon. Interiority, he suggests, is better understood as one end of a complex scale, which usually implies some awareness of Other as well as a reinterpretation of earlier traditions. These issues resurface throughout this volume, especially in Joshua Levinson’s analysis of rabbinic exegesis, in Catharine Edwards’s discussion of Seneca’s self-fashioning, in Mira Balberg’s reconfiguration of memory and forgetting in rabbinic literature as well as in Alfons Fürst’s study of Origen’s exegesis.

Matthew Roller discusses Cicero as a Roman intellectual and offers an innovative analysis of the well-known four personae theory in De Officiis. Careful to avoid Cartesian categories, Roller draws on Elwin Hofman’s four axes of the Self, which revolve around degrees of interiority, stability, holism, and autonomy. He argues that Cicero, based on Panaetius, develops notions of interiority, autonomy, and consistency, while stability remains marginal. Roller moreover underlines the social embeddedness of Cicero’s Self by investigating the role of personal exemplars for the development of the individual persona, which is “up to us.” Fashioning one’s Self according to role models emerges as a distinctly Roman way of constructing and promoting oneself in society. Roller concludes his essay by studying the test-case of Cicero himself, who was a homo novus and thus keen on adopting role models from outside his family. A close reading of his use of Marcus Aemilius Scaurus as a model reveals that Cicero cleverly constructed him differently on different occasions, creating for himself alternative paradigms, which suited the respective contexts in which he acted and fashioned himself. The flexibility of the Self is thus intricately connected to the social context in which it is shaped and to which it responds. Roller’s essay lays the foundation for other investigations into the contingency and flexibility of the Self. In the second section of this volume, Maren Niehoff investigates Rabbi Abbahu’s different forms of self-fashioning in the changing contexts of his communal activity, while Tobias Nicklas in the third section points to the boundaries of individual Selves in situations of conflicting social duties within Christianity.

Margaret Graver explores Seneca's rather neglected treatise "On Benefits" and argues that this treatise provides important insights into the Stoic understanding of the individual's inner life. As we might expect from a Stoic philosopher, Seneca defines gift-giving and other acts of kindness in terms of the intention they express: a benefit is essentially a "transaction between minds." However, he also issues a qualifier to Stoic intentionalism, in that he emphasizes the observable results of acts of kindness, the way they impinge upon the world and other people. Further, he indicates how a committed Stoic can adhere to a strong conception of divine providence while also insisting on the freedom of individual action. In Graver's handling, the treatise "On Benefits" emerges as essential reading for the Stoic theory of action and equally for Stoic theology. Graver's study of Seneca anticipates Alfons Fürst's discussion in the third section, which treats Origen's notion of free will in the context of the Self and the Christian community.

Gretchen Reydam-Schils draws attention to the contribution of Stoic philosophy to the ancient discourse about the Self in relation to the Divine. She opens by reviewing Platonic and Aristotelian notions of imitating God as an ethics that aims at an ideal and thus de-personalized Self. In these philosophical traditions, she argues, the specific qualities of a person as well as her social connections are ultimately transcended for the benefit of a universal ideal that is not strictly speaking Self but identified with the normative Divine. The Stoics, by contrast, develop a robust sense of the Self, which remains personal even in the face of god. Her prime example is Musonius Rufus, the first century CE Roman philosopher, who suggested that the Divine embraces virtues which are utterly human. Thus, when human beings imitate the deity, they do not transcend humanity, but on the contrary implement their own pristine values via an imitation of the deity. Reydam-Schils' essay anticipates other contributions dealing with the tension between the Self and the Divine. Yair Furstenberg treats this topic in the context of the rabbis, and Charles Stang does so regarding several Neoplatonists. Eve-Marie Becker takes up the topic with regard to Paul.

Karen L. King investigates the Gospel of Mary, a second-century Christian text that elaborates the appearances of the risen Savior to Mary and other disciples in the Gospel of John by reference to a Platonizing philosophical approach to the Self. The Gospel of Mary identifies the true Self as non-material, composed of the soul and guided by the mind. This "inner human" is identified with the Johannine descending and ascending Son of Man, whom the reader is asked to "put on," based on Paul's language of spiritual clothing. Rooted in the transcendent Good, the Self is to overcome the Powers of ignorance and wrath that rule the world by means of study, visions, and ritual performance in this life, and at death by ascent beyond time. King concludes by asking how the Gospel envisions human beings, who accept its strongly transcendental interpretation of the Self, as actually living in this world.

Yair Furstenberg asks whether the rabbis participated in broader Greco-Roman discourses about self-cultivation. Focusing on the Tractate of the Fathers, the only extant wisdom text of the rabbis, which has already drawn a lot of scholarly attention, Furstenberg proposes to nuance previous insights by stressing the rabbis' transformation of Greco-Roman notions. While indeed familiar with such wide-spread ideas as self-knowledge and choice of individual lifestyle, the rabbis translated them into distinctly religious images of being judged before God. Furstenberg concludes with a comparison to Epictetus, who also integrated the Divine into his discourses, but – unlike the rabbis – did not turn his god into the judge of one's actions, but rather related to him as a helper on the way to one's own self-perfection.

Charles Stang studies notions of the double Self among Neo-Platonists and its effect on the worship of the "Pagan" gods. Stang examines Plotinus, the founder of Neo-Platonism, and two later representatives of that school, namely, Porphyry and Iamblichus, who are known for their dispute about the role of ritual. Plotinus formulates an influential theory of the Self as fundamentally doubled, insisting that each embodied individual has an undescended intellect, a sort of counterpart abiding forever in the intelligible realm. While Porphyry endorses this model of selfhood, promoting contemplative ascent as a means of deification and a replacement of ritual practice, Iamblichus insists that human beings are fully exiled from the intelligible realm. In his view, the divine double descends into embodiment and requires salvation through "theurgy." Stang concludes by drawing attention to some later echoes of the notion of the doubled Self.

Joshua Levinson argues that rabbinic Midrash not only interprets Scripture but does so by creating a new dialogical interiority for its characters. He focuses on one specific Midrashic collection, Genesis Rabbah, and employs the literary categories of direct and indirect modes of representation to highlight how the Biblical characters are transformed by the rabbis into divided and conflicted selves. The inner dialogues and introspections, which are attributed to the Biblical characters, become a vehicle for the reader's self-examination and foster a certain type of divided consciousness; of being both inside and outside the text at the same time. Treating rabbinic Midrash, which is composed in Hebrew and Aramaic, Levinson shows that the rabbis shared broader sensibilities and considered introspection as an important feature of their religious heroes. This investigation into the construction of an inner Self through Bible exegesis is complemented by Mira Balberg's analysis of rabbinic instructions regarding an individual's memory and forgetting.

Laura Nasrallah investigates constructions of the Self through light in a variety of Byzantine sources, ranging from the sixth-century Riha fan and the contemporary philosopher Philoponus to church mosaics and architecture. She explores Philoponus' theory of vision to show that, rather than simply understanding sight as extramissionist or intramissionist, he emphasizes the medium

Index of Names

- Abraham 173, 174, 175, 176, 221, 361,
364, 443, 482, 493n144
Achilles Tattius 189
Aelius Aristides 235, 336, 398, 406
Aelius Theon 174
Africanus 56–7
Ahrweiler, Alexander 5
Akavia ben Mehalalel 138
Alexander of Alexandria 275
Alexander of Aphrodisias 79n34, 197n49
Amelius 153, 340, 343, 346, 346n77
Ammonius Saccas 198, 198n51, 199, 275,
289, 338, 339
Amos (prophet) 406
Anderson, Garry 27, 28n21
Ando, Clifford 6, 14, 375–92, 399n33
Anthemius of Tralles 205n91, 216
Appian 213
Apuleius 405
Arculf (Bishop) 220, 221
Arendt, Hannah 225–6n47
Aristotle 72, 72n3, 90–5, 99, 161, 187,
197n49, 198, 198n51, 199n54, 199n55,
200, 200n59, 200n61, 200n63, 201,
201n65, 202, 202n70, 203, 334, 345,
376, 377, 512–3
Asclepius 398, 405
Asconius 65, 66–7
Athanasius 285, 286, 287
Atticus 230, 254
Aufidius Bassus 237
Augustine 1, 1n2, 3, 165–6, 213, 213n2,
268, 268n62, 334, 420
Aurelian 341
Aurelianus 341
Aurelius Augustinus 347

Babatha 304
Balberg, Mira 7, 8, 10, 11, 14, 15, 127,
127n11, 294n5, 294n7, 429n41, 495–69,
527n20

Barr, James 41n70
Bartsch, Shadi 4–5, 261, 265n47
Ben Sira 43–4
Ben Zoma 143–4, 494n148
Boaz 180
Bruns, Gerald 489
Brutus 248
Buber, Martin 436n68
Burckhardt, Jacob 523n2
Butler, Judith 188, 188n2

Caesar 54, 303, 334, 376, 378, 379, 380, 381, 385
Cameron, Averil 296
Caracalla 293, 293n2, 302, 314
Carlebach, Elisheva 419n1, 432
Caston, Victor 197n48
Cato 60, 62, 67n35, 239n50, 241, 241n61,
241n63, 242, 245
Cato the Younger 241, 248
Catulus 65
Celsus 283, 516
Chaeronea 376
Chrysippus 4, 72, 73, 75, 75–6n18, 76,
77–8, 79, 84n53, 85, 93n8, 248n94,
515n42, 516n49, 516n51, 518
Cicero 8, 12, 51–70, 229–230, 233, 238–9,
241, 246, 248, 253–257, 334, 385, 386–
7, 399, 408
Claudius 341, 382, 383
Clement 239, 283, 288, 474n24
Coats, George 30, 32n39, 34n43, 35n46,
36n53, 37n59
Cohen, Herman 436n68
Constantine I 222, 223, 224, 299n28, 405
Copres of Oxyrhynchus 16
Corbin, Henry 149n1
Cotton, Hannah 304, 304n49
Cross, Frank M. 429

David 40, 44–5, 180, 222, 223, 345

- Dawson, David 475n31, 490
 De Lange, Nicholas 475n36, 476n41
 De Ligt, Luuk 332
 Demetrius of Phalerum 72n5, 86n57, 229
 Demetrius of Alexander 288n52
 Demetrius the Cynic 242, 242n68, 288
 Democritus 245
 Deren, Maya 425n23
 Derrida, Jacques 13, 353, 354, 355, 361, 362
 Descartes 153, 436
 Diocletian 16, 297, 297n19, 298n20, 301, 305n54, 309, 314–5, 524–5, 526, 527
 Diogenes Laërtius 120n47, 114, 130, 231
 Diogenes of Saleukia 339
 Diogenes the Cynic 137, 143
 Dionysius the Areopagite 166, 203–4n80, 286, 288, 289, 305, 305n54
 Dodds, Eric R. 151, 166, 338
 Dohrmann, Atalie 293n1, 294
 Domitian 335, 388
 Dressler, Alex 102, 236n38, 241n66, 247n89

 Eck, Werner 293n1, 298
 Eleazer ben Arakh 129, 132, 132n33, 136, 137, 313, 472
 Eliot, T. S. 166
 Elisha (prophet) 188
 Epictetus 10, 97n16, 98, 137, 137n54, 137n55, 137n57, 139n64, 141–2, 174, 177, 199, 239, 241, 396n18, 510, 510n13, 511n17, 515n42
 Epicurus 71, 72n5, 231–2, 233, 234, 246
 Esau 149n2, 169, 171, 172, 172n14, 173, 177, 178, 276, 427n29
 Eubulus 340
 Eudemus 335, 336
 Eusebius of Caesarea 274, 274n5, 275, 282, 284, 286, 288, 289, 290, 295n9, 299, 299n28, 301, 478
 Eve 315, 433n57
 Everitt, Anthony 229
 Ezekiel 190, 192, 194, 195, 195n37, 196, 489
 Ezra 363–4, 423–4, 425, 425n23, 426, 427, 427n29, 428, 428n36, 429, 430, 431, 431n47, 434n4

 Fabius Maximus 54, 60
 Feichtinger, Hans 155
 Firmicus Maternus 347
 Florentinus 380
 Flusser, David 482
 Foucault, Michel 3, 4, 12, 26n6, 52, 52n2, 174, 232, 233, 236n39, 259, 260, 260n25, 262, 263, 263n35, 264, 264n40, 265, 436, 438
 Fraade, Steven 7, 126n6
 Frank, Georgia 193
 Frankel, David 30
 Freud, Sigmund 436
 Freedman, Daniel N. 479

 Galatia 259
 Gemina 340, 342
 Genette, Gerald 182
 Gill, Christopher 3, 51, 54n8, 57n14, 61n22, 175, 239, 239n50, 241, 247n93
 Ginsberg, Harold L. 27n13
 Ginzberg, Louis 474
 Glikl of Hameln 15, 421, 430–434, 436, 437
 Goldin, Judah 130–1, 136, 137, 487n104
 Gordian III 339
 Gordon, Pamela 231
 Goshen Gottstein, Alon 477n45, 478n49, 490n121, 494n150
 Gracchus. 65
 Graetz, Heinrich 474
 Graver, Margaret 4, 9, 60n21, 62n23, 71–88, 99n21, 100n25, 101n29, 102n33, 174n28, 232n24, 237, 243–4, 244, 246, 246n86, 247, 459, 505n2
 Greenblatt, Stephen 5
 Greenfield, Jonas 27
 Gregorianus 297
 Gregory Thaumaturgus 287, 295, 295n9, 296, 297, 302

 Haberman, Devora Bonna 425
 Habinek, Tom 231
 Hadot, Pierre 244, 438, 492n136
 Hadrian 337, 381, 386, 482
 Hadrianus 335
 Hamburger, Kate 170

- Hannibal 54, 60
 Hanson, Richard P. C. 484, 484n87, 489, 493
 Harrill 112, 112n30
 Hartenstein, Judith 113n31, 116, 117–8, 118n42, 118n44
 Harvey, Susan Ashbrook 196, 219
 Hecaton of Rhodes 72
 Heinemann, Joseph 489–90
 Helena 222
 Helios 190, 195n40, 203n77
 Henriksen, Erin 443
 Heraclas 274, 275
 Hercules 57, 96, 97
 Herman, David 172n17
 Herman, Geoffrey 300, 301
 Hermotimus 136
 Hezser, Catherine 126n6, 294, 299n27, 460
 Hippocrates 134, 135, 136, 136n50
 Hippolytus 86n56, 474n19
 Hofman, Elwin 8, 58
 Holloway, Paul A. 258
 Horace 143, 144, 331, 342
 Horden 332
 Humfress, Caroline 293, 293n3
 Hunter-Crawley, Heather 196, 196n41, 196n 43, 205n87, 205–6n92
 Hypatia 528, 528n25

 Iamblichus of Chalcis 10, 149, 161–64, 165–6, 284, 343
 Isaac 172, 172n14, 173, 179, 175, 176, 177, 221, 316, 481, 482, 484n86, 490n125
 Isaac, Benjamin 297n18, 298, 298n24
 Isaiah 33n41, 192n21, 193, 429, 477n48, 489, 490n124
 Isidore of Miletus 216
 Iulia Agrippina 298n22
 Iuliana 298
 Iuvenal 335

 Jacob (Biblical) 149n2, 169, 171–2, 173, 174, 177, 178, 179, 276, 316, 427n29, 481n71
 James, Liz 201, 205
 Jeremiah 16, 33n41, 143, 144, 427n31, 430n46, 490n24, 505, 506, 510
 Jerome 190, 284, 288, 288n50, 288n51, 288n52, 473n18, 477n44
 Jesus 11, 12, 106–107, 109n15, 110, 112, 113–4, 115, 117n40, 135n47, 141n67, 149n2, 166, 205, 217, 221, 223, 224, 258, 266, 267n57, 279–9, 285, 286, 430, 481n71, 483, 483n79, 483n85, 484, 491n128, 494n149, 511–12, 513n35, 532n45
 John Chrysostom 215–6, 222n37, 203, 206, 475n28
 Jones, Tamsin 422
 Joseph (Biblical) 177–81, 484n86
 Joseph (Father of Jesus) 278
 Josephus 137n85, 297n18, 297n26, 316, 316n7, 409, 409n77
 Julian (the Apostate) 165, 203n77, 381
 Justin 275, 283, 337, 478n48
 Justin II 221

 Kant, Immanuel 436
 Kimmelman, Reuvan 473
 Kister, Menachem 477n44, 481n69, 176
 Krauss, Shmuel 474
 Krueger, Derek 193n28, 220–1
 Kugel, James 1n3, 27n12, 419n2

 Laban 178, 315
 Lacan, Jacques 448
 Laelius 54, 242
 Laidlaw, James 233
 Lambert, David 7, 8, 21–46, 182, 493n144
 Lapin, Hayim 294, 302, 302n41, 460
 Levi 107, 108, 112, 114, 120
 Levinas, Emmanuel 89, 101, 354, 436n68
 Libanius 294, 301n37, 306, 306n60
 Licht, Jacob 31n34, 32n38, 34n43, 36, 36n53, 38n64
 Lieberman, Saul 135, 138, 356, 358n22, 358n23, 366n48, 446n7
 Lindberg, David C. 197, 200n59
 Locke, John 376, 377
 Longinus 331, 338, 340, 241–343, 346, 346n78
 Lucilius 230, 232, 233, 236, 237, 239, 242, 243
 Lucius Crassus 54, 54n8
 Lucius Philippus 54

- Macrobius 347
 Maecenas 246
 Maimonides 132
 Marcella 159, 160, 343
 Marcellinus 236–7, 243
 Marcellus of Ancyra 274, 289
 Marcellus Orontius 343
 Marcus Cicero 229
 Marcus Drusus 54, 64n30
 Maria Theresa 267
 Marius Victorinus 347
 Marx-Wolf, Heidi 426n25
 Mary Magdalene 106, 111, 121
 Mata 431, 432, 432n54
 Maximian 305n54, 309
 Maximus of Tyros 336
 Mazeh, Hanan 179
 Metellus 65
 Metrodorus 72n5, 246
 Michaelis, Wilhelm 256
 Mieth, Dietmar 523
 Miller, Patricia Cox 196n42, 491
 Miller, Stuart 461
 Mirguet, Françoise 7
 Miriam 31
 Möller, Melanie 5
 Moran, William 27, 27m14, 28n22,
 33n41
 Morgan, Teresa 27n18
 Moses 31, 34n43, 35, 36, 37, 38, 314, 316,
 367, 368, 479n60, 485, 488, 489n113
 Moscovitz, Leib 309
 Musonius Rufus 3, 4n6, 9, 98, 99, 126,
 126n4, 286, 316

 Nachmanides 308
 Neusner, Jacob 300
 Newsome, Carol 7, 26n10, 175, 273,
 419n2
 Niehoff, Maren R. 11–21, 128n14,
 137n55, 293–329, 478n49, 479, 524n8,
 532n44
 Noth, Martin 30
 Noy, David 332, 334

 Obadiah of Bertinoro 144n77
 Origen 4, 12, 15–6, 273–92, 301, 303,
 303n47, 314, 471–503, 505–22

 Palmer, Alan 170
 Pamphilus 277n17, 279, 282, 282n34, 285,
 286, 287, 288, 289, 289n55, 290
 Panaetius 8, 51, 51n1, 55, 58, 62n23,
 100n25, 238–9, 238n49, 239n51, 241,
 241n65, 247
 Panayiotis Tzamalikos 274
 Pantaenus 264, 265, 27
 Paul 12, 54n81, 110–11, 217, 253–71, 273,
 301n37, 484n86, 407–9
 Paul the Silentiary 215, 216, 224
 Paulinus of Nola 190, 219, 343
 Paulus 56, 303
 Pericles 336, 376
 Peter 107, 108, 111, 113–114, 120, 121,
 217, 224, 507–9
 Peter of Alexandria (patriarch) 526–7
 Peter, Hermann 254
 Petsalis-Diomidis, Alexia 401
 Philo of Alexandria 6–7
 Philopator 79n34
 Philoponus, John 187, 196n42, 198,
 198n50–52
 Pinchas b. Yair 592
 Plato 110, 161, 199, 199n54, 344, 345, 393,
 406, 515n41
 Pliny the Elder 297n181, 301n37, 409–10
 Plotinus 10, 13, 93–97, 99, 149, 150, 151–
 163, 197–8n49, 338–347
 Plutarch of Chaironeia 189, 214n5, 231,
 235, 335n20, 341
 Pocock, John G. A. 376–7, 379
 Porphyry 10, 13, 90, 93–5, 99, 149, 150,
 151–153, 161, 163, 165, 284
 Posidonius 97
 Potiphar (Mrs.) 179
 Procopius of Caesarea 201n66, 215, 216,
 224, 296
 Pseudo-Dionysius 193n29, 203, 204, 205
 Publius clodius 64
 Publius Sestius 64
 Purcell, Nicholas 332
 Pythagoras 161, 265

 Quintus Varius 65

 R. Abbahu 8, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 128n14, 293–329, 302, 315

- R. Acha 316
 R. Akiva 461, 461n59, 472n3, 473n13
 R. Ba 311
 R. Eliezer 129, 178, 457n41, 459
 R. Immi 302, 305n55, 315
 R. Ishmael 461–466
 R. Joseph She'altiel ben Moses ha-Kohen 433n57
 R. Judah the Patriarch 130n24, 130n25
 R. Meir 450n17, 461
 R. Nathan 134n39, 464–5, 466, 482
 R. Simon b. Abba 299
 R. Tarfon 132, 134–5, 135n47, 136, 137
 R. Yehoshua 169, 457n41, 459, 461
 R. Yehudah 450n17, 487
 R. Yohanan b. Zakai 361, 477n44
 R. Yose 482
 R. Zeira 13, 353–72
 Rachel 177, 316, 486n97
 Raucher, Michal 433n58
 Regulus 239n50
 Rivera, Mayra 102n31, 188, 188n2, 198n49, 207, 207n98
 Romanos Melodos 174n27, 193n28, 220–1, 222, 223, 223n45, 224
 Rosenzweig, Franz 436n68
 Ross, W. D. 91, 91n5, 92
 Roueche, Charlotte 296
 Rufinus 279, 281, 282, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290
 Runia, David 476
 Rüpke, Jörg 6, 6n8, 90n2, 102n32, 245, 295n8, 336n28, 340n48, 393–418, 523, 523n5
 Rutilius 245
 Sabbatai Zvi 15, 422, 431–432, 433n57
 Sarapias 524, 525, 525n13
 Satlow, Michael 7, 126, 126n7, 311–312n83
 Saturninus 65
 Scaurus, Marcus Aemilius 8, 54, 64, 64n30, 64n31, 65–7, 67n34, 67n35, 69
 Schellewald, Barbara 189n5, 26
 Schofer, Jonathan 7, 139n63, 145, 174n29
 Scott, Joan 435, 435n62, 435n64, 436
 Sedley, David 92
 Seneca 3, 4–5, 8–9, 11, 14, 15, 16, 71–88, 100, 139, 140–1, 213, 229–251, 260, 261, 264, 316, 459, 491
 Sextius 234
 Shaw, Gregory 162–3, 164
 Sheer, Monique 25
 Shulman, David 262, 267n57
 Silvanus 398
 Smith, A. Mark 203
 Socrates 54, 93, 96, 139n64, 150–1, 241n61, 245, 288, 289n55
 Solomon 222, 223, 223n45, 224
 Somers, Mararet 182
 Sorabji, Richard 4, 90n2, 198, 198n51, 199, 200n58, 241n63
 Stern, David 181
 Sternberg, Meir 172–3
 Stobaeus 78n32, 114
 Stoller, Silvia 425n23
 Stroumsa, Guy S. 262, 267n57, 513n37
 Synesios of Cyrene 16, 524, 528–534
 Tacoma, Laurens 332, 399n37
 Tamar 12, 180, 181, 302, 303–4, 303n48, 304, 304n49, 305, 306, 307, 308, 308n63, 318
 Tatianus 343
 Taylor, Charles 25, 26, 42, 52, 180
 Theodor, Julius 313n86, 492n138
 Theodora 217, 223
 Theodore of Mopsuestia 192, 193
 Theodoret of Cyrus 194–5, 195n38
 Theodorus 526n16
 Theodosius II 216
 Theophilus of Alexandria (patriarch) 529, 534
 Theophrastus 72n5
 Thrasyllus 335
 Tiro 229
 Torjesen, Karen 491, 491n133
 Tullii Cicerones of Arpinum 64n31
 Urbach, Efraim 473, 476, 477n44, 489n112
 Uriel 427n29
 Varius 65
 Vernant, Jean-Pierre 3

Vespasian 297, 297n18, 388

Virgil 243, 282

Virgin Mary 217

Weissler, Chava 433, 433n57

Whitmarsh, Tim 5, 312n84

Williams, Bernard 102n31

Williams, Megan 477n44

Williams, Gareth 99

Wills, Lawrence 140n65, 145

Wurst, Gregor 116

Zahn, Theodor 408–9

Zelcer, Mark 433

Zenobia 341

Zethus 343, 344

Zeus 84, 85, 85n55, 86

Žižek, Slavoj 448

General Index

- acculturation 332, 338, 343
– intellectual 331
– Porphyry's 343, 345–6
Achaia (Greece) 259
Achilles Tattius. Leucippe and Clitophon
189, 196
action, Stoic theory of 9, 73, 97, 515,
515n41, 517
actions: appropriate(καθήκον) 71, 77, 80
– beneficent action (εὐεργεσία) 72, 72n3, 80 – fully right (κατόρθωμα) 71
Acts of Philip 275 aesthetics, literary 245–8 agency 6, 83, 83, 85, 151, 516
– human 101, 102, 318, 395
– moral 239, 244
– of divine beings 80
– political 379
– social 333, See also self-agency
Alexandria 13, 198, 284, 275, 279, 296,
333n12, 334, 336, 338, 339, 340n46,
340n48, 341, 403, 408n73, 471, 524,
526, 526n16
aliens resident, Roman law and 14, 385–7 allegory 476–7, 480n82, 490, 490n125,
493, 494n150
– in Rabbinic Midrashim 477n44,
477n45, 528
– Midrash vs. 471
– Paul and 484n86
– Origen and 477n48, 484, 493n146
Allogenes (Tchacos Codex) 116, 116n39,
117–8, 117n40, 117n41
altruism 71
Antioch (Antiochene) 187, 192, 280 anxiety 166, 173, 174, 214, 338 apocalypse 294, 339, 405, 422, 423, 477n44 apocalyptic literature 405, 410
– account in 4 Ezra 421, 423
Apostolic Constitutions 192 appropriate action (καθήκον, officium), in Stoicism 71, 77
arbitrium (choice) 80
Aristotle, De anima 187, 198, 198n52,
201n65, 203
– Metaphysics 91
– Nicomachean Ethics 90, 91, 92, 99
– Politics 376
Aristotelians 9, 90n3, 97, 187, 198, 265,
265n48, 333, 336, 337, 345, 376, 510n13
askesis (exercise) 126, 127, 265n47 ascent (συγκατάθεσις) 4, 4n6, 79, 98, 79,
83, 157, 157n15, 514
– ritual of 112n30, 116, 118, 119 asylum 377
Athenaeum 337
Athens 13, 165, 203, 241n5, 280, 331, 333–8, 339–43, 346, 346n78, 379. See also Rome
Augustine, City of God 165 authority 137, 159, 165, 181, 263, 278–9, 308, 311, 312, 315, 385, 402, 405, 420, 424, 435, 438, 449
– moral 15
– of God 145
– of Halacha 307
– of Roman law 300, 307, 314, 317
– rabbinic 15, 317, 464, 465, 467 autobiography 3, 262, 263 autonomy 8, 52, 58, 60–1, 63, 276, 293, 515, 516. See also consistency
– interiority
Avot (tractate) 125–148
Azzise system 304, 304n51
Babylonian Talmud 189n9, 190, 300,
301, 309m67, 315n89, 353, 358–9n26,
368n52, 446n10, 451, 451n19, 456n38,
458n45, 462, 465n60, 465n61. See also Jerusalem Talmud
– Palestinian Talmud

- Bar Kokhva Revolt 294, 294n6, 298n22
 Beirut 296
Beneficium 74
 betrothal 309, 446
 – alternative interpretations of 311
 – gift 308, 310n74
 – Jewish notions of 309n8, 311
 – Roman 12, 308, 309, 310, 310n74, 312, 314
 bible. See Hebrew Bible
 – King James Bible
 – Septuagint
 – Vulgate
 bible interpretation 7, 12, 298n21, 313, 317 biblical exegesis 286, 365, 476 body, notion of. See interiority
- Caesarea 12, 14, 256n10, 287, 293–329
 Campania 344
 care of oneself 4n6, 12, 142, 255, 407, 510–11, 513, 514
 Cartesian categories 3, 8, 29n27, 52, 58, 58n17, 172n17, 175 cherubicon 193
 cherubim 11, 188–96
 childbirth 421, 422, 425, 431, 433, 433n57
 – among Haredi women in Israel 433n58. See also pregnancy
 Christianity and philosophy 275
 Cicero's letters 12, 230, 253, 254 circumcision 266, 459
 Cicero, De Officiis (On Duties) 8, 51, 53, 64, 67–9, 100n25, 237, 247, 509n8 – De Natura Deorum 81n41, 83n48, 136–7
 – On the Laws 386–7 cities 14, 136–7, 217, 218, 220, 222, 224, 279, 295, 295n9, 296, 297, 297n18, 298, 298n22, 304, 313, 317, 331, 339, 340, 341, 342, 344, 355, 358, 389, 397, 399, 428, 446n7, 477, 478. See also Athens, Rome, urbanity citizenship, Greek 376
 – Roman 14, 293, 293n2, 302, 314, 376, 378–9, 382, 383–4, 385, 387, 388–9, 399, 402, 408
- Codex Theodosianus 411 collective identities 397, 400, 401, 402, 403, 411 color 196n42, 197n49, 199, 201, 201n67, 202, 203, 217, 450n17
 – Aristotle and 198–199, 200, 200n3, 201n65
 – light and 198, 201, 201n65, 202n70, 203
 – Philoponus and 199n5, 202n70. See also sight
Colossians 112, 113
 Community Rule (Qumran) 129 compassion 27, 82, 222 compatibilism 101 conflicted self 171 connectivity 332 conscience 16, 527, 531, 535 consciousness 10, 244, 299, 393, 394, 420n4
 – in Rabbinic Midrash 169–185 consistency 8, 58, 61, 61n22, 62, 62n24, 83, 99, 100, 237, 238, 239, 395. See also autonomy
 – interiority
Constantia 59n18, 61, 62, 62n23, 64, 68
 Constantinople 11, 192n24, 126, 223, 224, 225, 528 contemplation 91, 92, 144, 154, 156, 161, 163, 204, 213, 224, 260n25, 275, 282, 283, 514, 515 conversion 268n62, 274n9, 275, 458 Corinthians 12, 256n10, 259 cosmos 15, 99, 101, 109n12, 193, 204, 204n83, 242n69, 394, 395, 421, 424, 426–30, 433, 434, 436, 437, 532
- decorum* 53, 53n5, 53n7, 55, 59, 61, 62, 63, 238, 246, 247 desire 8, 25–51, 68, 89, 95, 98, 109, 113, 114, 115, 117, 119, 135, 141, 180, 199n57, 240, 257, 262, 283, 285, 353, 362, 390, 401, 404, 425, 425n23, 454, 515, 519
 – religious 258, 264
 Deuteronomy 27, 40, 42, 42n73, 44, 445
 Didache 129
digestae (legal sources) 337

- diversity 239, 293, 313, 317, 406, 411, 438, 508, 509, 517, 518
- divine and human agents, parallelism between 80n38, 82n44
- divine double 10, 95n12, 149, 149n1–2, 150, 150n4, 153
- divine self 115
- Stoic human and 97–101
- doctrine 71, 89, 99, 161, 506, 507
- Christian 220
 - doubled intellect (Plotinus) 160
 - foolish 117
 - historical cycles 516
 - of light (Aristotle) 202n70
 - salvation of the devil (Origen) 279
 - Stoic 71n1, 83, 83n48, 516
 - undescended intellect (Plotinus) 150
- ecclesiastical hierarchy 166
- ekklesia, Christian 407, 524
- embedded self 175, 187–8
- embodiment 76, 142, 150, 154, 241, 420n5, 421, 490
- emotions 4, 7, 27n13, 77, 84n53, 114, 119, 141, 173, 174, 425, 526n18
- empire. See Roman Empire
- enactivism (4E cognition) 29, 29n27, 42
- Encomium* 295, 295n9, 296, 297, 303n44
- Ephesians 112, 113
- Epicetus, Discourses 137, 137n54m 137n58, 139n64
- Epicureanism 132n33, 136n51, 234, 265
- epistemology 111, 187, 203, 205
- eschatology 15, 109n12, 264, 266, 268, 421–2, 423, 424, 425, 426, 429–30, 432, 433, 433n58, 434, 437, 482, 483, 487
- Essenes 143n74
- ethical discourse 127, 128, 129–32, 142, 143, 145
- ethics 9, 16, 52, 99, 102n31, 233, 343, 354, 393n2
- Greco-Roman 125–148
 - mimetic 267
 - Stoic 71, 72, 73, 78n32, 175n28, 515
- ethnic groups 333, 343, 344
- ethopoietic functions 260, 260n25
- ethos 239, 260, 482, 491n131, 534
- priestly 493
 - rabbinic 459
- evil 44, 96, 97, 100, 101, 121, 131, 138, 149n3, 155, 157, 277, 281, 454, 514, 518
- yetzer (inclination) 481, 492
- evil eye 179, 189n9
- exemplarity 51–70
- defined 52
 - Roman 52n4
 - Scauris' 67n34
- exile 12, 14, 62n24, 64, 150, 161, 162, 164, 216, 233, 254, 256, 365
- Roman law and 383–5
- Exodus 15, 31, 44, 368, 471, 472, 472n2, 473, 478n49, 479n56, 485
- experience, inner 84, 112, 220
- embodied 95n12, 433
 - of individuality and self reflection 2, 215, 235, 398
 - sensory 11, 215, 218, 219, 230.
- See also* Scott, Joan, "The Evidence of Experience," (article)
- exteriority, vs. interiority 2, 3, 58, 58n17, 93. See also interiority
- extirpation (karet) 446
- extramissionist 10, 196–7, 200, 202n69.
- See also* intromissionist
- faith 27, 36, 36n53, 37, 37n57, 223, 283, 385, 526, 527
- fate 84, 86, 86n56, 101, 141, 149, 258, 259, 265, 267, 360
- fertility 425
- fiction 172n17, 237, 389
- legal 309, 382
 - narrative 170, 172
 - persona and 389–390
- Flavian municipal law 6, 385n29, 387, 388
- forgetting 258, 445–447, 449, 450–3, 455, 456, 456n38, 457–9, 465n61, 527n20
- memory and 8, 10, 14, 15. See also self-forgetting
- fortuna* 56n11, 59, 63, 66, 67
- 4 Ezra 14–15, 421
- construction of the maternal self in 428–30
 - pregnant women in 423–6
 - womb and mourning mother in 426–8
- 4 Maccabees 44–5

- four perspae (Panaetius), theory of 8, 51, 52, 53, 55, 56, 58, 60, 61, 621, 63, 63n26, 63n27, 67, 68, 100, 237–8, 238n46, 239, 241, 247, 509n8
- freedom, interiority and 71–88
- metaphysics of 505–22
 - of decision 60, 79, 79n34, 80, 519
 - of individual action 9, 16, 60n21
 - self-agency and 514–21
- freewill 79, 79n34, 83, 161, 345, 514n39, 516–7, 518, 519, 519n61, 519n65
- friendship 72n3, 91, 100, 254, 254n4
- gaps 2, 14, 74, 390, 483, 513
- gender 2, 110n17, 111, 112, 120, 375, 394, 421, 422n6, 425n23, 434, 457
- gendered experience 437n69
- generations 1, 38, 66, 181, 235, 246, 248, 311, 364, 367, 398, 429
- Genesis* 111, 169, 170, 171, 190, 285, 313
- Genesis (Bereshit)* Rabbah 10, 169, 170, 173, 178, 301, 313, 315, 317, 358n24, 478n49, 481, 494n148
- gods. See Worship of the gods
- good flow of life (εὐποία) 101
- the Good 105, 107, 108, 108n11, 109n13, 110, 110n21, 111n26, 114–115, 118, 119, 120
- goodness 20, 517
- God’s 517, 518
 - moral 114, 121
- goodwill (benevolentia, εὐνοία) 73, 75, 78n32, 80
- Gospel of John 9, 106, 106n5, 107, 109n12, 109n15, 110, 111, 115
- Gospel of Mark 430
- Gospel of Mary 4, 9, 105–24
- gratitude (gratia, χάρις) 72, 74, 75, 76, 78n32
- group membership 96, 399, 400, 404, 405
- habits 14, 54, 62, 310, 448, 450, 41, 453, 458, 507
- epistolary 301
 - philosophical 232
 - ethical 511
- Hagia Sophia 11, 193n28, 205, 205m91, 213–26
- as a Roman and Christian space 222–4
 - dome of 194n30, 205n91, early Byzantine liturgy at 192n24
 - lighting effects 189n5, 201n66, 206
 - marble floors of 204–5
 - mosaics 192n21, 206
- Halacha (Halakhah) 127, 299, 305, 307, 314, 317, 447, 447n11, 458, 460, 464, 467
- hametz 446
- happyness 95, 98, 125, 143, 161, 242, 314, 394, 432
- hard worker, Origen’s self-fashioning as a 283, 284–6, 290
- Hattat 455
- heart 131n27, 131n28, 132, 132n30
- Hebrew Bible 26, 26n8, 26n10, 27, 28, 33, 39n66
- Hegemonikon* 132, 132n30
- hekhalot, literature 190
- mysticism 195, 489n112
- Hellenistic Judaism 45, 282n31, 540
- hemdat yamin 433
- heraclitean flux 77n27
- hermeneutics 471
- biblical 283
 - rabbinic 475n36
 - Origen’s 483n146
- historical cycles, doctrine of 516
- holy men (θεῖοι ἄνδρες) 338
- Holy Thursday 221, 221n36
- homilies (homily) 189n6, 193n26, 277, 277n16, 472, 472n9, 473, 473n14, 474, 478, 478n53, 479n56, 479n59, 480, 480n67, 482, 486n97, 490, 505
- honor 27, 92, 130n24, 144, 144n77, 160, 176, 290, 529, 530
- hospitality 355, 362
- absolute 354, 361
 - conditional 354
 - unconditional 13, 354
- “house of Caesar,” 300–1
- human nature 90, 93, 95n12, 98, 99, 151, 395, 425n23, 509
- connection with the divine 73
 - universal 238
- humiliation 258, 266, 368
- humor 54, 172, 357n20

- hypostasis 161
 Iamblichus, On the Mysteries 161, 162
- identities, collective 400–1 – individual 295n8, 400 – multi-layered 337, 402
imitatio dei 492, 493n145
 Imperial Period 332, 397, 398
 – Rome and Athens during the 333–8, 401 impression (φαντασία) 79, 98, 230, 514 impulse (ὀρμή) 4, 53, 78n32, 98, 131, 246, 420, 462, 464, 514 impurity, ritual 447, 452. See also purity, ritual incense 196, 218, 219
 – See also smells income 358n26
 Ideal self 63n26, 241
 – problem (Aristotle) with an 90–93
 – problem (Porphyry and Plotinus) with an 93–97 indifferent, preferred 101, 395 individual self 1, 2, 15, 16, 230, 318, 408, 429, 520, 521 individuality 1, 2, 6, 6n8, 12, 16, 89, 108, 213, 248, 393, 396, 399 – practical 397
 – religious 523
 – self-agency and 505–22
ingenium 11, 60, 236n40, 237, 238n47, 242, 242–3, 244, 245, 246, 246n86, 247 inner self 10, 12, 38, 188, 268, 273, 395, 524, 524n10, 529, 530, 531, 532n44, 534, 535 innovations 128, 149n1, 161, 164, 174, 288 inspiration, from the Logos 281–283 Institutiones (Gaius) 303 integrity 64, 65, 262, 295 intellect 151, 152, 154, 156, 161, 285, 515n41, 518 – descended 154, 156, 169, 161
 – divine 156, 394
 – doubled 160
 – individual 160
 – nous 151, 159
 – undescended 10, 150, 156, 159, 161 intention 78, 78n31, 85, 127, 170, 49 – importance of in rabbinic legislation 463n58 interiority 1–3, 7, 8, 10, 14, 15, 27n18, 28n21, 29, 33, 33n42, 52, 59, 61, 63, 98, 119, 172, 175
 – directed 213–26
 – freedom and 71–88
 – notion of the body and 265–67, 268
 – vs. exteriority 2, 3, 58, 58n17, 93 interspection, introspection and 264–5 intromissionist, Philoponus as an 10, 199n54, 200, 202n69.
See also extramissionist introspection 1, 4, 10, 16, 232, 268
 – interspection and 264–5 inwardness 25, 26, 42, 43
- Jerusalem Talmud 190, 301, 307, 308, 311, 312, 313, 316, 317, 318. See also Babylonian Talmud
 – Palestinian Talmud
 Johannine story 9, 106, 111, 115, 116
 Justinian, Digest 295, 296, 378, 385 joy 27, 28n21, 80, 114, 115, 118, 256, 425
- Kaper Koraon (site) 191, 191n19, 192
Kiddushin 313
 kindness, acts of 72, 80, 80n38, 85, 97
 King James Bible 37n60, 39n67, 41
 “know thyself,” 138n60
- laborers 132, 133, 134, 135, 135n47
 Lamentations Rabbah 495n154
 Late Antiquity 1, 2, 16, 27, 150, 170, 174, 183, 188, 190, 195n40, 201n68, 213, 219, 290, 293–5, 297n17, 298–300, 301n37, 307, 312, 314, 331, 347, 357, 366n48, 378, 429n41, 524, 525n13, 525n15, 534 laziness 134, 284, 285
 lepor (charm or wit) 54
 letters 16, 231, 524, 528
 – Cicero’s 12, 229–30, 253, 254, 254n3, 256
 – Epicurus’ 246
 – Paul’s 12, 253, 254n3, 258, 259, 261, 262, 264, 265, 301n37

- Seneca's 213, 230–32, 233, 234, 235, 239–40, 301n37
- Synesios' 528–9, 534
- Letter to Diognetus 408, 410, 410n82
- Leviticus Rabbah 480
- light, Aristotle and 202n70
 - color and 198, 201, 201n65, 202n70, 203
 - in Hagia Sophia 189n5, 201n66, 206
 - metaphysics of 205n87
 - self in 187–211
 - sight and 195–201
- literalists, Christian 276
 - exegetical 290, rabbis as 476
- literary address, "selves" as subjects of 108
- literary style 244, 246, 247–8
- liturgy 187, 192, 193, 196, 196n41, 207, 218, 219, 224
 - Byzantine 192n24, 193m 195n40
 - Christian 166, 189, 190, 194, 220, 407
 - Constantinopolitan 215
 - Hagia Sopia and 220
 - Jewish 190
 - Syria 192n22
- love 27, 27n14, 71, 159n16, 188, 276, 310
- luck 75, 77

- manichaeism 1
- market place 403
- marriages, Stoic 242n69
- match (man's) 315, 316
- maternal self, construction of in 4 Ezra 428–43
 - Glikl of Hameln and the construction of a 430–434
- matter and body, theory of (Origen) 512
- Mekhilta de Rabbi Ishmael* 471–503
- memory 8, 10, 77, 95–7, 100, 432, 447, 448, 449, 454n32, 458, 466–467
 - active 455, 456, 457
 - collective 466
 - cultural 336
 - declarative 445, 456
 - forgetting and 8, 10, 14, 15
 - procedural 445
 - prospective 445, 454, 456
 - retroactive 445
 - Stoic 100
- menstruation 425
- merkabah* (chariot) 190, 195, 195n40
- Messiah 422, 430, 430n45, 432, 434
- metaphysics 109n13, 346
 - and freedom 505–22
 - of light 205n87
 - of motion 510
 - of radical alterity 89
 - of rational self-motion 514
 - of the One (Plotinus) 165
 - of the stoics 393n2, 515, 516
- midrash 131n28, 171–2, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 358n24, 430, 473n13, 479n59, 493n144, 494, 495n152
- migrants (migration) 332, 333, 334, 336, 344, 297, 299n37, 400
- mimetic ethics 267
- min (heretic) 367
- mind (nous) 94, 108n12, 111, 151, 159m 491
- mindedness (φρον-/φρεν-) 261
- mindset 142n70, 257, 261
- mobility, of Greek intellectuals to Rome 331–32
 - social 298n22
- modern self 25, 29, 52, 182
- monogamy 314, 315, 315n89, 317
- monologue, divine, 178–81
- moral progression 509
- mosaics 11, 187, 194, 194n31, 194n32, 195, 195n40, 201, 202. See also Hagia Sophia
- motherhood 421, 422, 429, 434, 436n68
- motion 378, 390
 - Hunter-Crawley's analysis of 196
 - metaphysics of 519
 - voluntary 518–19
- mourning 426–8

- narrative fiction 170, 172
- nature, individual 55, 56, 59, 60, 64n30, 67, 68
 - internal 63
 - universal 55, 56, 59, See also human nature
- nefesh* (spirit/soul) 40–43
 - 41n69

- 41n70
- 42n73
- neglectfulness (ἀμέλεια) 284
- neoplatonic philosophy 164, 528
- Neo-Platonists 9, 10, 13, 150, 151, 164, 344n69, 394n2. See also Platonists
- Nika Riot [ce. 532] 216, 222, 225
- nomina sacra* 525, 525n14
- normative self 16, 98n17, 230–1, 232, 237, 240, 241, 248
- North African Donatist Church 527–8
- Novi homines (new men) 57

- obedience 85n55, 86n56, 86n 57, 142, 222, 225, 406
- occurent self 63n26, 98n17, 230, 232, 241
- Officia (duties) 53, 80, 394
- oikeiosis* (οἰκειωσις), Stoic doctrine of 142, 394, 396
- ontology, philosophical 111
 - traditional. 89
- opseis* (opsis) 187, 197, 200
- optimates 64, 65
- Oracula Sibyllina* 403
- Origen, Homilies on the Book of Judges 483
 - Homilies on Exodus 15, 471, 472, 485
 - Homilies on Genesis 276, 277
 - Homilies on Jeremiah 16, 50, 510
 - Homilies on Leviticus 478, 480
 - Homilies on Numbers 507
 - Homilies on Midrash Leviticus 480
 - Homilies on Psalms 276, 284, 286, 303n47, 314
 - Homilies on the Song of Song 477n45
- Other 4, 4n6, 8, 89, 140, 307, 353, 355, 356, 361, 362, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369
 - Babylonian, 354, 356, 360, 368
 - in Palestinian rabbinic narratives 354, 355
 - internal 356, 360
 - self and 71, 73, 309
- otherness 13, 162, 337, 360

- paganism 165, 274n9, 294
- Palestinian Talmud 361n33, 451, 462, 462n56. See also Babylonian Talmud
- Jerusalem Talmud

- Palmyra (Syria) 341, 342, 346n78
- Paul, Letter to the Philippians 12, 256–8
- paradox storicorum* (Cicero) 248
- Paschal Lamb 407
- passions 95, 97, 100, 110, 119, 120, 157, 240
 - overcoming 113–4, 115
- Passover 314, 353n4, 446, 454, 472, 479n55, 483, 485
- Pastor Hermae* 407
- peace 106, 113
 - interior 112
 - of mind 240, 526
- “perfect Human,” concept of 112, 113, 115, 119
- pentapolis 407
- persona* 389–390
- personality 12, 14, 52, 58n17, 174, 229, 254, 312, 346, 356
 - 387
 - Abbahu’s 307, 318
 - Cicero’s 256
 - differences of 241
 - ethical 142
 - fill legal 378, 379
 - historical 12–3, 300, 301, 307
 - human 2, 16
 - individual 11
 - inner 3
 - Origen’s 289
 - social embeddedness 3
 - totality of 41n70
 - unique 16
- personhood 52, 102, 243, 396
- Pesiqta Rabbati* 430
- “Philistines,” 12, 276, 281, 290, bad exegis and 276–278
- philoxenia 356, 357. See also xenophobia
- piyyut* 190, 430
- Plato, First Alcibiades 510
 - Phaedrus 96, 158n16
 - Republic 96, 110
 - Timaeus 92, 93, 93n8, 96, 161, 334, 334n19, 393n2
- platonists 13, 90, 164, 282, 333, 341, 346, 347, 394n2, 516
 - Athenian 340, 346
 - Roman 338. See also Neo-Platonists

- Plotinus, Enneads 96, 151n9, 153, 158, 159
- Plutarch, Life of Marius 100
- polemics 12, 29, 263, 263n35, 236n37, 273, 288, 289, 290, 403, 476
- Origen's self-fashioning through 276–281
- political theory 37
- Aristotelian and Peripatetic 265
- Polygamy 314, 315, 135n89, 317
- Porphry, Against the Christians 274
- Letter to Anebo 161
 - Letter to Marcella 156, 159
 - Life of Plotinus 13, 150, 151–2, 156
 - On Abstinence 156
 - Sententiae 94
- Power of Wrath 115n36, 117, 117n42. See also wrath
- pregnancy 15, 421, 422, 424, 425, 425n23, 426n25, 429, 432, 433n58, 434, 436n68, 437. See also childbirth
- presbyters 278, 279
- providence 4n6, 9, 83, 101, 101, 514
- Psalms* 34, 34n44, 206, 276, 284, 286
- self-reflections in 139–140. See also Origen, Homilies on Psalms
- psycho-narration 173
- purity, ritual 7, 458, 463
- laws of 127, 464. See also Impurity, ritual
- pursuits (ἐπιτηδεύματα) 100n25
- “push-and-pull” factors 333, 333n10, 338, 241
- Pythagoreans 265
- Qumran 129, 131n26, 139, 140, 140n66, 313n86, 315n89
- Rabbinic court (Caesarea) 12, 299, 307–13
- raz nehyeh, knowledge of 140n66
- reader, implied 15, 176–177, 181, 366
- reason (λόγος) 45, 77, 91, 92–3, 97, 98, 99, 101, 165, 514–5, 515n41
- divine 99, 244
 - perfected 93, 98, 98n17, 99, 101
- religious practices 398, 399, 402, 211
- Romans 343
- repentance 27, 222, 225, 268n62, 408n68, 488n107, 491, 491n129
- revelation 105, 113, 117, 117n40, 119, 177, 189n5, 190, 261, 262, 489, 489n112, 494n149
- riha fan 10, 11, 188–95, 196, 198, 201, 202
- Roman Empire 2, 6, 13, 14, 224, 294, 295, 306n57, 312n84, 314, 318, 331, 334, 342, 346, 402, 405, 408, 410, 411, 527, 541
- as an intellectual landscape 332–333
 - individualization in the cities of 393–418
- Roman governor 295, 296, 301, 302, 304, 305, 306
- Roman jurists 14, 303, 375, 436
- Roman law, authority of 300, 307, 314, 317
- changing legal status under 387–9
 - exile in 383–5
 - Rabbi Abbahu's role in mediating 12, 293–330
 - resident aliens under 385–7
 - self, society, individual, and person in 373–92
 - social theory of 375–8, 389
- Roman Palestine 355n12, 360, 366n48
- Roman Stoics 3, 188, 238, 395
- Rome, during the Imperial Period 333–338
- mobility and migration of Greek intellectuals to 331–352
- ruling principle (ἡγεμονικόν) 98
- Sabbath 449–52, 450n17, 453, 455–7, 458–459, 461–2, 464, 465n61
- sacrifice 101, 155, 157–8, 160, 163, 221, 294n5, 490n125, 525, 526, 527, 535
- sage (Stoic), depersonalized 240–3
- sapiens 240, 241
- Stoic idea of 231
- Sassanian Babylonia 355n15, 360
- Savior 9, 105, 106–9, 108n11, 109n12, 110, 110n18, 111, 111n26, 111n27, 112, 113–6, 119, 120–21, 258
- Scott, Joan, “The Evidence of Experience,” (article) 435–6. See also experience
- Second Sophistic 5, 336
- Self-agency 505–21
- freedom and 514–21. See also agency

- Self-fashioning 1, 2, 5, 7, 8, 11, 12–14, 57, 63, 67, 261–3, 273–92, 299–300, 301–7, 312, 313, 316n97, 318, 318n100, 346, 348, 378, 390, 472, 490
- self-forgetting 450
- self-formation 107, 125–148, 437, 450, 471
- self-knowledge 10, 138–142, 230, 238, 268, 378–383, 390, 423n19
- self-love 92
- self-perfection 10, 126, 127, 145, 235
- self-reflection 2, 5, 6, 7, 127, 127n11, 139, 177, 179, 221, 261, 262, 263, 267, 393, 395, 397, 406, 410–11, 449, 466
- self-reflexivity 170, 354
- self-transformation 231, 471, 494n148
- self-writing 253, 260–1, 268
- Seneca, De Beneficiis 72, 73–74, 77n28, 99
- De Brevitate Vitae 100
 - De Ira 264
 - Epistulae Morales 232, 233n29, 237, 239, 240, 241n65, 243, 244, 248
 - Epistles 82n44, 245, 246, 260, 264, 265, 518n50
 - Naturales Quaestiones 244
- Sensory hierarchies 197
- Septuagint 28, 28n21, 30, 32n37, 39n67, 43, 473
- Shir ha-Shirim* (Song of Songs) Rabbah 356, 361–3, 366. See also Song of Songs
- sight, knowledge and 189, 194
- light and 195–201
 - self and 187, 189, 190, 205–7
 - theories of 187
- slaves (slavery) 134, 340, 342, 379, 380, 381, 388, 409
- smells, and Christian liturgy 218–22, 224
- See also incense
- social hierarchies 220, 523
- constructing Individual selves within 524–535
- social theory, Roman law as 375–8, 389
- Songs of Songs 283, 361, 364, 473, 476, 477n4, 481, 487–7n99, 494, 512
- Hippolytus's commentary on 474n19
 - Origen's commentary on 480n62, 513, See also Shir ha-Shirim (Song of Songs) Rabbah
- soul, ascent of the 115
- unified concept of in the Stoic sense 97, 514
- Stoic paradox, rabbinic 142–144
- Stoicism 3, 4, 53n6, 62, 73, 73n9, 85n55, 86n56, 98n17, 100
- ancient 85, 97
 - free choice in 60n21
 - Hellenistic 72
 - orthodox 60n21
 - Platonic background to 394n2
 - Roman 188, 515n42
 - Seneca's epistolary version of 230
- subject, dialogical 177–8
- divided 169–85
- subjectivity 45n82, 119, 151, 172, 175, 232, 247n89, 262, 393, 419, 421, 428n40, 436n68, 437, 514
- apostolic 261
 - introspective 175
 - irreducible 89–90, 102, 102n31
 - legal 456, 457, 458, 466
 - maternal 434
- substance 97, 191, 509, 518
- material 197
- symphon* 308, 309, 309n67, 309n70, 310–11, 322n83, 312
- ta'avah* 8, 28, 29, 30–3, 32n39, 33n41, 34, 34n44, 35, 37, 38–9, 38n63, 39n67, 40–41, 42, 42n72, 42n73, 43, 43n78, 44, 45
- Talmud. See Babylonian Talmud
- Jerusalem Talmud
 - Palestinian Talmud
- Tannaim 130, 311, 358n26, 430, 446n10, 488, 490
- literature of 315n91, 475n36, 480
 - Midrashim 471, 472, 472n3, 474n24, 475, 475n31, 475n36, 476, 478, 478n53, 479n56, 479n59, 480n64, 481, 482, 482n75, 492, 495
- Targum Onkelos 28n21, 31, 32, 32n36, 35n48, 42
- Temple, destruction of (first) 408, 409
- (second) 15, 129, 222, 294n5, 364–5, 421, 423–4
- Ten Commandments 33n41, 44, 358n24, 473n10

- “Testaments of the XII Patriarchs,” 131n26
 Thessalonikē 194, 196, 205, 259
 Theurgy 150, 161, 164, 164n25, 165, 166
 Tiberias 12, 301, 305, 307, 311, 312, 315, 317, 368n52
 Time, roll of in the cultivation of the self 419–43 tirdat mitzvah (preoccupation with a commandment) 446n10
 Tkhines 433
 Toga virilis ceremony 112n30
 Torah 125, 125n3, 127n11, 135n47, 145, 180, 367, 368, 447, 465n61, 466, 472, 474n27, 480, 481, 483n80, 489, 492, 494
 – “a fence around,” 452, 452n22
 – Oral 475n36, 487n100
 – study of 7, 126, 132n33, 136, 475, 491
 Tosefta 190, 316, 449, 450n17, 457, 461–2, 463, 464–5, 494n148
 Totality 41n70, 89, 101
 Tractate Shabbat 449, 453, 455, 457, 458, 461, 464
 Transcendence 11, 89, 231, 243, 244, 246, 248, 344, 396
 Transculturality 346 translations 26, 31, 3n44, 37n59, 39n67, 42, 43
 – ancient 26, 28, 28n21
 – Aramaic 28n24
 – Greek 28n21
 – Hebrew Bible 27, 30, 31, 32, 32n36, 35n48, 37, 37n60, 39n67, 41, 41n69, 42 traumas 432n57
 True Cross 220, 221
 Tzofin 446, 446n7

 Urban Market 397–9
 Urban selves 393–417 urbanity 14, 396, 397, 406. See also Athens, cities, Rome
 vices 129, 130, 238, 240, 247, 276 virtues 9, 56, 80n38, 98, 99, 130, 247, 491n127 vision, theory of 10, 187, 196n42, 197–8, 199, 199n54, 200, 201, 201n65, 201n68, 201n69, 202, 203 voice 120, 245, 362, 431, 431n47, 434, 435, 438, 508
 – of authority 420
 – Seneca’s 248
 volition 16, 73, 74, 76–7, 78, 80, 81, 82, 82n44, 83, 85, 86, 174, 174n28, 510n13, 514
 Voluntas 56, 57, 76, 80
 voluptas (Pleasure) 53
 Vulgate 43, 28, 28n21, 30, 32n37, 32n36, 39n67, 43 wilderness narratives 28, 34, 35, 36, 40 womb 424

 – and the mourning mother in 4 Ezra 276, 426–8 women 15, 112n29, 120n46, 121, 214n4, 220, 305, 309, 310, 312, 313, 318, 340, 343, 379, 421, 422, 425n23, 427, 428n40, 428, 429n41, 433, 433n57, 433n58, 434, 436, 437, 437n69, 438, 463–4 world soul 93n8, 157, 393n2
 World to Come 125, 126, 133, 135, 489n113 worship of the gods 10, 149–68 wrath 9, 105, 114, 115, 120, 120 – God’s 35, 39, 39n66, 364. See also Power of Wrath

 xenophobia 356, 357. See also philoxenia

 zetesis 282, 283, 286
 Zion 222, 427, 428, 429, 486 – return to 364, 365, 431